THE BUTTERFLY OF THE SEA

WALKING TOUR

THE SLIME TRAIL FROM THE BOTTOM OF THE OCEAN

Look! What is that? Mysterious sea creatures are crawling out from the depths of the sea. Sea snails. Colourful, slug-like lumps of jelly, also known as the butterflies of the sea. There are more than 3,000 species in different shapes and colours. A few of them have surfaced onto land. Both curious and alluring, they move closer. Dive in and trace the slime trail from the bottom of the ocean through an encounter with these strange creatures. Who knows? They may not be as unfamiliar as they seem.

A walking tour with the snails constitutes a walk with the snails around the local area, preferably outdoors and close to nature. The snails will share with us, secrets that they have carried with them from the bottom of the sea. When we trace the slime trail, we engage with the experience, and we too become a snail for a short while. Equipped with antennas and green ribbon wands we will help the snails in continuing the slime train, so they can remember where they have been. The slow pace allows us to see and explore the nature and others around us. The snails will guide us to a chosen spot in the area, where they will perform a snail ritual, just like they do at the bottom of the ocean.

POP-UP-PERFORMANCE

CITYSCAPE AND AT FESTIVALS

The snails invite young and old into their world filled with small poetic breaks in the middle of the cityscape. At the pop-up, the snails appear where you wish and the people who are there can then interact with them. If you are open to the encounter and wish to connect with the snails, they will gift you a small token from the bottom of the ocean.

The mysterious sea creatures are a symbol of colour and imagination and bring with them gentleness and adventure into urban spaces to foster hope, freedom and a healing community.

The pop-up concept works well alongside other events and does not require continuous engagement from people. It works well in a cityscape, at festivals, alongside concerts, or other events.
